Egan Pitched a Good Game, but Allowed the Bisons to Bunch Things in the Third That Cost Is the Victory.

Things in the Third That Cost Us the Victory.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 26.—(Special.) The Blues and Bisons played a rather listless game to-day, and the visitors had the victory within reach several times, but lost principally on account of their inability to hit Kearns. The Blues were all broken up, and, considering the fact that the positions were shifted in such an unusual manner, they made a very creditable showing, Gear and Stricklett played positions in the field, replacing Rothfuss and Gettman. The two last named players were sadly missed, but Gear did his part in the hitting line, and got more clean drives than any other member of his team. It was a clean game, and the crowd was impressed with the contrast between the clean playing of the Blues compared with the methods employed by the Millers, who were here recently, "Rip" Egan pitched a good game and made a satisfactory showing, compared with the work performed by Kearns, as far as the number of hits concerned, but the Bisons' pitcher kept his hits well scattered, while Egan let the home team bunch things in the third. This hard luck allowed the Bisons to score two runs.
Hulen was presented with the first hag, and reached third on a hit by Gear. Ganzel also was in line with a clean hit to and reached third on a hit by Gear. Ganright that scored Huien. The Blues' big first baseman reached the second sack without difficulty, but made a break when he attempted to steal third. He was plastered with the ball a mile away from the base. Rellly followed with a poor exhibition of a man who wanted to bunt, but could not. He bobbed at the ball three times without success, and was called out. Miller also struck out. This was the greatest inning of the day for the Blues, to the first presented the Phillies with two runs as a starter. They made that the following eight acts they failed to try with three runs in the seventh. At

The match which occasioned the greatest interest in the morning was that between W. J. Travis, of Oakland, and R. C. Watson, Jr., of Westbrook. JEFFRIES SAILS TO-DAY.

Champion Pugilist Goes to Europe to Meet Charley Mitchell and Jem Smith.

NEW YORK, July 26.-James J. Jeffries, the pugilist, arrived to-day in this city after a pleasant tour across the country. The big fellow will sail for Europe tomorrow on the North German liner Fuerst Bismarck. He is in prime condition for his contests with Charley Mitchell and Jem Smith, which are to take place abroad within a fortnight. Jeffries will return here about September within a fortingat.

Jeffres will return here about September 15, when he will go into training at Asbury Park for his fight with Sharkey. "The salior." said Jeffries, "has been doing considerable talking about how quickly he will polish me off when we meet. I don't say I will beat him in a punch, in four rounds, or anything of that sort. Sharkey is a big, strong fellow and has a chance to defeat me, but I think I will get the decision when we meet."

Regarding the talk about a fight between himself and McCoy, Jeffries said he did not consider the "Kid" in his class. "McCoy." he said, "is a good clever middle-weight, but has no chance against heavy-weights, If McCoy, however, insists on a match with me he can obtain it, provided that he will agree that the winner take all. I am not in the fighting game for fun. I want to get all the money out of the game there is in it while I am on top. When some fellow comes along and beats me I want to have a bank account on hand. A beaten fighter is not of much account unless he has money in the bank."

BEST INVESTMENT OF THE CEN-TURY.

For the purpose of better acquainting th public with our Mexico land proposition, we will endeavor to more thoroughly ex-plain the method that we shall pursue in organizing groups for the purchase of land to be planted and improved and at the end of 72 months be conveyed to the persons acting as trustee for the purchaser. The method of arranging the agreement to be entered into by the group of investors is as method of arranging the agreement to be entered into by the group of investors is as follows:

Let us say a group of 20, each subscribing to one share of stock. For each they would have to pay $4.17 each month, for a period of 72 months. This group of 20 persons select some one as trustee, to act for them and in their stead, in the signing of the notes and contracts in favor of the Grijalva Land and Coffee Company. This group having selected their trustee, they enter into a regular agreement among themselves, wherein each one agrees to pay to their trustee the amount one on their purchase, and that, in the event, either of the parties to the agreement should fall to comply with his agreement, that then he relinquishes his interest to the other persons composing the group. But before such relinquishment such delinquent shall have the right to sell and dispose of his interest in said group at any time. And in the end, when all the requirements with the Grijalva Land and Coffee Company have been complied with, the title will be issued to the trustee of the group. For the benefit of the parties in interest each party of the group may have his interest set aside by their trustee or the conjoined interest may be maintained at the request of the group. We have found that by practicing the methods as herein set forth, that a large number of people of limited means are given an opportunity to invest in an enterprise which will ultimately compensate them a hundredfold.

An acre of land planted to rubber is calculated, when in bearing, to be worth not less than $200 per acre, and that the net revenue derived therefrom should not be less than $200 per acre, and to the less than $200 per acre, and to be less than $200 per acre, and that the net revenue derived therefrom should not be less than $200 per acre, and to coffee about $125 to $150 net; chocolate should produce about the same. This, of course, does not include side crops that can be and are planted between the rows of coffee trees, such as pineapple, bananas, tobac etc.

Vulcain, Mark Cheek and Golden Rule being scratched, Petrucho and Sardine seemed to have the prits between them. A lot of educated money went in on King's Courier, but the public at large seemed only to have heard of him, when he spread-eagled his field and romped in an easy winner. W. Martin gave a remarkable exhibition on Sardine, managing with great skill to keep him back to sixth place. His explanation that the horse sulked was accepted, however, by the stewards. There was a long delay in starting the fourth race during which Jolly Roger kicked everything in sight, finishing up by knocking the fence down and giving Swiftmas a bad gash on his hip. St. Cloud and Filon d'Or, the two favorites, made all the running until the stretch, when Swiftmas, who had been running under wraps back in the ruck, came up in a drive and won easily. The fifth race brought together a poor lot, of which Dangerous Maid proved far the best. Lady Algy had lengths the best of the start but needed a lend of a mile to win. The stewards announced that Joekeys R. Williams and W. O'Comor, who were suspended until the end of the meeting at Brighton, would not be allowed to ride at Saratoga until after that time.
